Inland shrimping season shut down 'indefinitely'

By RICH ADAMS
Shrimping in waters north of the Intracoastal Waterway, including waters off Hancock County, was temporarily closed Friday. The action was taken by Dr. Richard Leard, head of the Bureau of Marine Resources under the Department of Wildlife Conservation, who said Saturday torrential rains from Hurricane Bob and Tropical Storm Claudette poured fresh water into the Bay of St. Louis and Biloxi Back Bay, forcing undersized shrimp out into the Gulf.

Leard said the closure will be "indefinite," but said he hopes to re-open shrimping "within six days to two weeks."

Leard said shrimp of "120-count or smaller are being caught mainly around the east end of Deer Island," and because of that, the Wildlife Conservation Commission authorized him to "temporarily close shrimping north of the Intracoastal Waterway for an indefinite period of time until our

Lack of quorum delays Gulfview principal ok

By RICH ADAMS
The Hancock County School Board Saturday morning was unable to approve a recommendation by Superintendent Terrell Randolph to hire a new principal for Gulfview Elementary School because not enough members attended the special meeting to constitute a quorum.

Board Members Johnny Banks and Louise Ladner were present at the Saturday morning meeting, but Board President Woodrow Ladner and Board Members Oris Ladner and Monvel Cuevas were not available to vote on the superintendent's recommendation.

Randolph said he could not contact Oris Ladner and inform him of the meeting, and said Woodrow Ladner was attending the All-Star Football game in Jackson Saturday.

Cuevas was working offshore and could not leave his job to attend the morning meeting, the superintendent added.

Randolph is recommending William H. Haddock of Rankin County to replace Harlan Hill as Gulfview's principal.

Hill became the county school district's state program coordinator in June.

Haddock, a 53-year-old native of Enterprise, has been principal of the Brandon Attendance Center in Rankin County, where he held that position for 7.5 years.

He received a degree in education at the University of Mississippi.

He has 14 years of experience in teaching and administration, 11 of those 14 years in Rankin County. He taught fifth and sixth grade at Puckett Elementary School in Rankin County for one year, was a principal at Mendenhall High School Attendance Center for three years, and was a junior high attendance center principal at Pearl for three years.

He and his wife Margaret, a legal secretary, have one daughter, Lady Helen, a junior at University of Southern Mississippi.

"I have only seen Gulfview and Hancock North Central," Haddock said Saturday.

"Everything here looks above average for the state," he added.

Haddock is not a stranger to growth

Auto-teller users share liability

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Beware county residents who use the 'debit-card' system, or automatic teller machines, which allow bank customers to make withdrawals and perform other banking transactions when the bank is closed.

Consumers who use this system share liability with a bank if an unauthorized transfer of funds occurs and may lose all the funds in that account if the bank is not notified within 60 days.

"If an unauthorized electronic transfer occurs," says Walter Hinkle, executive vice-president of the Hancock Bank system, "the owner of the card is liable for up to $50 if the bank is not notified within two days of the unauthorized transfer."

Winkle defines unauthorized transfer as "someone other than the authorized person using the card."

The consumer's liability increases as the time period increases, Hinkle explains.

Section E of the Electronic Funds Transfer Act, Federal Reserve Regulation, governs the consumers liability with regard to the debit-card system, Hinkle notes.

The Hancock Banks are the only ones in the county with a debit-card system (Handy Bank). Both Gulf National Bank and Merchants reported they do not provide that service in Hancock County.

Hancock Bank Vice President Robert Hamilton, manager of the Bay St. Louis Beach Boulevard branch, said, "No one has lost any funds from use of the Handy Bank in Hancock County."

Hinkle contributed to Hamilton's remark, saying, "No one in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties in addition to Piquette and Poplarville using Hancock Banks has ever lost any funds from using Handy Bank card system."

Hancock County Home Economist Shirley Robinson warns consumers should keep only a limited amount of money in an account accessible by electronic funds transfer.

"Watch your account like a hawk," she suggests.

Relocation of federal functions studied here

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Studying proposed relocation of governmental functions concentrated in Washington D.C. to other parts of the U.S., Office of Management and Budget representatives from Washington queried local officials here Thursday about local impact of the Navy Oceanographic Office's move to Hancock County.

Gary Katz and Cynthia Miller, conducting the study, questioned how local residents feel about the relocation of Navy personnel from Suitland, Md. to the National Space Technology Laboratories near Bay St. Louis.

The representatives met with Bay Mayor Larry Bennett and Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Alton Kellar at the Bay City Hall.

"My impression from Kellar and Bennett," Katz explained, "is the impact of the Navy's relocation from the national capital area to NSTL can not be clearly tracked."

Port Commission rescinds budget

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Thursday rescinded a resolution approving a budget proposed by its budget committee at a July 19 meeting.

A motion to send the proposed budget back to the committee was made by Dave McDonald and seconded by Commissioner Fred Curet, and passed unanimously.

The budget committee is to make modifications on funding, but not change the bottom line.

A rather lengthy discussion concerning public information came on the heels of a story in The Sea Coast Echo July 22 about a "secret budget," commissioners were told by Commission Attorney Robert Genin that their actions are "public record."

The commissioners have scheduled an 8 a.m. meeting Monday to go over

PITCHER OR STONE?—Whether the stone hits the pitcher of the pitcher hits the stone, it's going to be bad for the pitcher, philosophizes the Man From La Mancha, a principal which seems applicable here: Whether the Semi hits the Volks or the Volks hits the Semi, it's bound to be bad for the Volks. In this case it was bad for the Volks at the corner of US-90 and Hwy. 603 in Waveland Thursday evening. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas) samples show they have returned to the legal size...88-count per pound."

"The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory ran samples last night, and we will continue to collect samples to see if the count improves," Leard said Saturday.

"We anticipate the south-southwest winds will continue and the water will get salty in the bays again," Leard continued.

"Then the smaller shrimp will return to the bays and shrimping may resume," he explained.

Leard said he is empowered to close the season north of the waterway.

"We can declare it (closed) on an emergency basis. Someone may dispute it, but I don't think anyone will, and the commission gave me the authority to do this at my discretion," Leard said.

Earlier in the week the Gulf Coast Fishermen's Association called on Leard to close the shrimp season immediately because of the small size being harvested.

Leard said fishermen complained about the small shrimp leaving the bays following Hurricane Bob, but explained the small crustaceans returned after a short time.

"This time we received more rain over a longer period of time," Leard said.

Records Kept On 170 Million

The records of earnings covered by social security for over 170 million men, women, and children are kept at Social Security Headquarters, each identified by that person's name and social security number, a social security representative said recently.

A person's earnings record is very important. That record will be checked when a person applies for benefits to determine if the person worked long enough in jobs covered by social security and to determine the amount of benefits.

time in which errors can be corrected, people should check their record every 3 years or so. A free post card form for this purpose can be obtained at any social security office.

If a person's own records do not agree with the amount shown on the earnings statement, he or she should call any social security office. Give the social security number, the periods of employment involved; wages paid in each period, and the employer's name and address. If Forms W-2, pay slips, or other proof of unreported wages is available, they should be included.

Dorn said the trio allegedly committed three burglaries in the Waveland area, two at homes where they allegedly removed beer and whiskey from the dwellings, and a third at the Magnolia Street Western Store where $800 to $1,000 in clothing was taken.

The crimes all occurred on July 24 and were reported on July 27, Dorn added.

The Man You Can Depend On...

Elect James C.
LADNER
Sheriff

Good Law enforcement is essential for Hancock County to keep progressing....

James C. Ladner is a lifelong resident of Hancock County. He was educated in the public schools of Hancock County. I am married to the former Betty Maude Moran, daughter of Sylvester Moran and the late Velina Nacaise Moran of the Kiln, and the father of three sons, Jamie, Gregory and Mark, Dedaux Community, and two daughters Mrs. Carl (Joan) Olson and Mrs. John (Sharon) Barnett of Kiln.

I have tried to contact each and every one of you but as time comes to a close I will not be able to see everyone. So I would like to appeal to each voter, through this article, for your vote on August 7th for Sheriff.

During the past 17 years, I have served you as a Deputy Sheriff, qualifying me to serve you as your Sheriff.

The people in this county deserve more protection from the Sheriff's department than they have received. Therefore, I see a necessity to put patrol cars on a 24 hour patrol in different sections of this county. This will give every section of this county coverage from the Sheriff's department. I know this is necessary from past experience. When you contact the Sheriff's department for service, you the people of Hancock County, can be assured that help will be there!

Vote the man you can depend on, James C. Ladner, for Sheriff of Hancock County on August 7, 1979.

Editorial

Some folks are real nice!

The recent fire caused by lightning which destroyed the residence of the James Lindsey's in Shoreline Park again shows just how nice some residents can be.

Offers of a place to stay until the family can get back on their feet have come in from numerous concerned citizens.

We at The Sea Coast Echo received telephone calls Sunday from three persons offering a place to stay and others have called the Sheriff's Department making the same offers.

We have been told by other unfortunate residents also who have had their homes destroyed by fire, how they never realized how concerned we really are about our neighbors.

It is refreshing for us to realize that even today at our fast pace of living we still have time for our neighbor in his time of need.

We have been told by the Lindsey's that they are doing well for the time being, and they really appreciate the concern of the many people of Hancock County.

We realize there are a few 'bad apples' in our midst, but all the 'good apples' far out shine the bad ones.

Bits 'n pieces

Many candidates have had signs printed or painted and have placed them in yards of supporters. We cannot understand why opponents or supporters of opponents would stoop low enough to steal some of these signs.

Numerous signs have been stolen from several candidates especially in the Cedar Point area. We think this is unfair and hope the culprits will be caught.

We thought Hancock County politics has out grown these type of tactics.

It is interesting as to how often the tennis courts on Washington Street get in the line of sight. As we can remember last year the weeds were so high a person could get lost on the ends of the courts.

It is obvious that some folks are concerned about the playground being updated, but maybe not enough folks as yet. If the officials are not going to update the playground they should just close it down with a lock and key and forget it.

Many of our youth enjoyed some wonderful summer activities at our Libraries. Those responsible for putting these programs together should be commended.

The formation of a Big Brother, Big Sister organization in the area is something from which the community can reap many benefits.

We have to commend Ken France and the many whom have given of their time to serve on the steering committee and the honorary board.

We are sure we will be hearing a lot more people volunteering their time and talents to the Big Brother, Big Sister programs and want to thank them in advance for their help.

We are told by several we have talked to how much they enjoyed the Annual Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Farm City tour Thursday. We were unable to make it this year, but will be looking forward to next year's event.

We wish everyone in the County would at least take advantage of the tour one time. It is a very educational experience which we found out last year.

OPPOSANTS ARE CLASSMATES—Charles Pickering, left, and Texey Hall Smith, Republican candidates for state attorney general, graduated from the University of Mississippi Law School within six months of each other. Handshake follows speaking engagement last week at Diamondhead Country Club sponsored by the Hancock County Republican Women's Club. Pickering stressed the importance of a good voter turn out and Smith called for all candidates to follow his lead in making public their financial dealings. Mrs. Mary McDonald was chairman for the luncheon. (Staff photo—Randy Foster)

FDA explores sun bathing safety

Which of the following statements is correct?

1. Sunscreens (including suntan lotions) are necessary to get a suntan.
2. In two weeks of careful sunbathing, a person can get a suntan without the use of sunscreens or lotions.
3. Skin cancer often develops from sunbathing.
4. The sun's rays carry radiation.

Only the first statement is incorrect. Sunscreens and suntan lotions are not always necessary to get that healthy suntan look. That's because statement No. 2 is correct: Lotion-less suntans are possible by gradually increasing one's exposure to the sun over a two week period.

Of course, the accuracy of that statement depends on the sunbather's ability to tan—some people have to suffer through life without a suntan because their skin just won't cooperate.

Statement No. 3 and No. 4 are most definitely correct. The sunbeams include ultraviolet rays. Ultraviolet rays are, in a word, radiation. They can start the process of cell breakdown and malformation that leads to skin cancer.

Skin cancer is the most prevalent of all cancers, with just two types causing an estimated (by the National Cancer Institute) 300,000 cases a year.

Fortunately, skin cancer is one of the most treatable. That's because it's visible and usually is detected early. If getting a healthy looking suntan is not all that healthy and if the lotions and creams are not all that needed, why then do Americans spend millions of dollars and hours each year lying in the sun soaked in various potions?

A panel of outside experts who evaluated the safety and effectiveness of sunscreen ingredients for FDA said that such products may permit an individual to remain out in the sun longer without burning.

Sunscreens can help reduce the skin cancer danger by absorbing, reflecting or scattering those potentially harmful ultraviolet rays.

To help consumers select products that best meet their needs the panel recommended adoption of a rating system, already in use in Europe, called the "sun protection factor."

Rated on a scale from 2 to 15 plus would indicate the effectiveness of sunscreens.

The minimal rating of 2 is for a product would be for persons who seldom burn but tan profusely.

It would offer minimal protection. At the other end of the scale would be the 15 plus sun protection factor—ultra rating for those who never tan but always burn.

Products with such ratings would provide a guide for the consumer in selecting the cream or lotion that would best protect him or her from the harmful rays of the sun.

Some manufacturers have already adopted the panel's rating system.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I'm thinking about making a public office out of your... I'm looking through old newspaper files and can't find many examples of what seem to be good ads. Are There Any?

Dear ATA: Much political effort is directed toward the electronic media. This is for several reasons:

- 1) The newsness, at least to the pole, makes it a novelty for them to hear and see themselves on the air.
- 2) It seems to be a deceptively easy method of advertising. It is easy, but not if done well. Good media requires time, hard work and money, to an even greater extent than print. If done well, it is effective—if not it is, at best, useless; at worst, counterproductive.
- 3) The messages seem to be, and are, less permanent. Saying something on the air seems to be less binding than committing the same messages to print; and finally,
- 4) The mistaken feeling that electronic reaches more potential voters, more effectively.

Most of these notions are obviously false.

except to the baffled candidate who has lost his judgment in the heat and fray of a campaign.

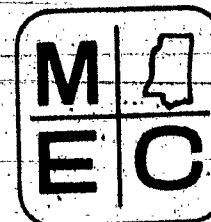

Addressing only the latter should be sufficient for your question. People listen and view for entertainment, and your candidacy unless you are a singer or a stand-up comedian, won't fit their needs.

However, people read newspapers for news and information about current issues and events, so if your ads to their reading tastes and you are on target, they will read them.

Most effective print ads stress a central theme or slogan (which also dominates electronic media and outdoor) but it also includes intelligent discussion of key issues.

Don't be vague or evasive. Be sincere and honest. Your written discussions won't be prejudiced by your appearance and voice quality. Don't take chances on the unknown. Use a proven medium proposal for people who are interested in what you have to offer.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

NEW BREED NEEDED
Mississippi is perhaps ready for a new breed of politician—candidates who can and will intelligently address the issues which confront this state and offer viable solutions.

But, so many times political races represent little more than personality contests with candidates donning television makeup or appearing on attractive pamphlets and posters.

Personal information and past deeds are important, but past accomplishments are no guarantee that the candidate will be able to address the issues which may influence the state's standard of living, its incentives to business, or provide more efficient highway administration or government organization plan.

Now—before the elections—is the time to question candidates and reject "fuzzy" answers to vital issues.

Fact sheets are fine, but candidates should also release "Issue Sheets" to indicate where they stand on the various issues. Then, after the election, the citizens of Mississippi should hold these officials accountable for their pre-election promises.

Congress Should Say No to the Special Interests

By DAVID COHEN

Congress refuses to say NO to the special interests who seek inflationary favors from government. Hundreds of wasteful subsidies, tax preferences, and anti-competitive regulations are costing American consumers billions of dollars. These costs directly fuel inflation.

Congress treats inflation as most of us treat bad weather—complain and accept what comes. Something CAN be done about inflation if those special interests are challenged.

According to William Simon, President Ford's Secretary of the Treasury, "Many businessmen want import quotas, subsidies, tariffs, handouts. They want to enjoy the profits when everything is just fine, but they want to nationalize their losses (through the U.S. Treasury) when economic storms blow in." They want protection from the very competition that made our system so dynamic. Simon's comment applies to lots of special interests.

Congress allows its obsession with the most parochial concerns to prevent it from doing what's needed to halt inflation: to break up powerful economic interest groups, to suppress measures which cause the price of consumer goods and services to rise, to favor special interest programs that the public pays for directly through higher taxes. There are more examples than anybody can count. Here are a few.

Congress has allowed it to be necessary to create inflationary health costs. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated that health cost containment legislation considered by Congress last year could have saved consumers about $27 billion through 1982. Yet $1.7 billion in 1980 was paid in out-of-pocket contributions from the American Medical Association (AMA), the parochial interest of hospital cost containment. The bill, which would have been a major victory for the consumer, was defeated.

Congress also has a bad habit of supporting many subsidy programs which cost consumers dearly. Fewer than 1 per cent of U.S. farmers grow sugar cane or sugar beets yet the sugar industry is one of the most expensively subsidized products of the U.S. economy. The current sugar price support system costs consumers $1.5 billion a year in direct costs alone and pressures are mounting for Congress to increase the subsidy even higher. Someone has to foot the bill—it's the American taxpayer.

Sometimes Congress may not vote a direct subsidy to a special interest, but instead grant a tax break. Either way citizens pay. For example, Congress has given corporations a $1.5 billion tax preference allowing them to defer taxes indefinitely on a large portion of the income they earn on exports. The Treasury Department has said that this tax incentive is not increasing exports and thus is supposed to be a waste. Yet that tax preference and hundreds of others remain because Congress never examines whether they are meeting their original goals.

To the elders (overseers, pastors, or bishops) at Ephesus, Paul counseled to "take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock (church) over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which He hath purchased with His own blood" (Acts 20:28).

To the extent that I fail in my responsibility, the church fails: in the extent that I succeed, the church succeeds. It cannot do the many great things I can do some of the things I can be faithful to. DELIBERATE?

By Ed Blake

Official notices of plans for major rail line abandonment were posted last week in railway depots of northeast Mississippi - in the heart of some of this state's most intensive industrial development - and business and agricultural leaders formed a task force last week to take railroad-management to task for their position.

The Illinois Central Gulf railroad company notified agents and the press in Tip-pah, Union, Pontotoc and other northeast counties that it is studying a proposal of its own to abandon about 120 miles of railroad from Bemis, Tennessee - just north of the Mississippi state line - to near Ackerman - very close to the geographical center of the state.

It is anticipated that in an upcoming hearing on the proposed abandonment before a federal judge the railroad will attempt to show current financial losses from operation of the line as justification for abandonment.

Business leaders in the affected area are organizing and will seek legal counsel to point out that the line is flanked by, and either can or does service, some 150 businesses and industries on the well developed industrial corridor that parallels Highway 15.

But even more implausible to the fifty-plus concerned businessmen - that met in Pontotoc July 18 to organize a pro-rail service task force - is the fact that, railroad shortage notwithstanding, the line has failed considerably to furnish railcars requested by the business community.

One of the major users of the area rail service is the Farmers' Marketing Association, which operates one of two major grain elevators in Pontotoc county. Neal Huskinson, manager of the farmers' elevator at Pontotoc, reported that last fall during the soybean harvest his elevator required 150 large rail hopper cars but only got 30. This, the manager said, really put the harvest movement in a bind and resulted in lower prices when they had to call in every kind of truck they could get to move soybeans out when the capacity of the elevator was filled. One railroad hopper can haul about four times as much grain as one truck at about one-half the cost, Huskinson said.

"Inconvenience is one thing," the grain manager said, "but the worst part is our financial losses when we can't move the beans to our export facility on the Mississippi River south of New Orleans. That's where our farmers get their best prices and we can handle many more beans for less cost by rail than in trucks. Add to that the rising cost of diesel fuel and the strikes and you see where it puts us. We produce from $10 to $12 million worth of soybeans on 73,500 acres in Pontotoc county alone!"

Industrial representatives reported receiving only about one-third of the railcars they needed for the conduct of their businesses, while deterioration of the railroad trackage was described as deplorable with maximum safe speeds of local trains being reduced to only ten miles per hour.

Chickens & Eggs, June, 1978
Mississippi's 6,839,000 layers produced 134 million eggs in June 1978, according to the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is 5 million (4 percent) below the 139 million eggs produced in June 1977.

Broiler-type chicks hatched in Mississippi during June totaled 24,716,000 (6 percent) above the June 1978 hatch. The hatch of egg-type chicks was 869,000, (31 percent) below the 1,267,000 egg-type chicks hatched in June 1978.

There were 25,156,000 young chickens slaughtered under Federal Inspection during May 1978 in Mississippi. This is 2 percent above the 24,689,000 inspected during May 1977. May Post Mortem condemnations were 1.86 percent, as compared to 1.36 percent in May 1977.

ELECT
Hugo "Dutch"
Haas
Supervisor District Four

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT FOUR:

Once again, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of District Four for the fine vote that I received in the first and second primaries of the last election.

During the present administration, a prohibitive tax increase was placed upon all county property owners without opposition. Realizing that in these times of inflation, energy costs, and threatened recession that place burdens on the people, taxes should be lessened instead of being made greater, I pledge to you to never be for a tax increase of any kind unless it is first submitted to the electorate for their vote and only after their approval.
DRAINAGE AND IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS - Planned use of Federal Revenue sharing funds to first correct drainage problems and then construct a road that will last and serve the people.

RECREATIONAL AND YOUTH PROGRAMS - We need to spend more money to provide recreation for our children. I pledge to work for summer job programs for our children.
ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION - Control of pollution is most important to our tourist industry and I will sponsor programs to clean our waterways, particularly Jourdan River. I will sponsor sewerage programs for rural areas as money becomes available.

I will do the best job possible with the monies available in all areas of this district.

Public Service Commissioner, Southern District

HENRY (BUCK) BUCKLEW
Henry (Buck) Bucklew, former mayor of Laurel, announced his candidacy for public service commissioner, Southern district.

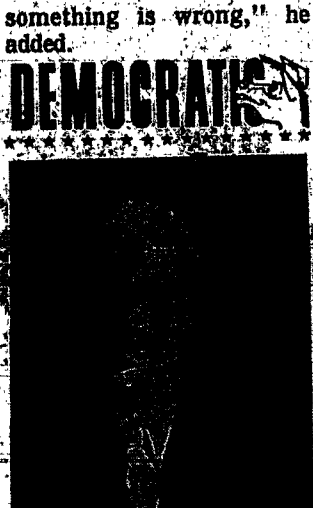

Bucklew is a former candidate for lieutenant governor and is founder of the Magnolia Boys' Town for needy youngsters.

The Forrest County native graduated from Mississippi College and received a law degree from Jackson School of Law.

He was state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars from 1971-72, and was named national memorial program at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington, D.C. as national chaplain of the VFW.

"I prayerfully and seriously considered all opportunities available to serve and help people who have always helped me," Bucklew said in his announcement speech.

"This office directly and personally affects you. Your public service commissioner must regulate the cost of your electricity, natural gas, water, and telephones. When your utility bills are higher than your house payment, you know something is wrong," he added.

CHARLES W. JACKSON
Charles W. (Charlie) Jackson, promising to "pull the plug on high utility costs," announced his candidacy for public service commissioner, Southern district.

The 26-year-old Jackson native attended Southwest Junior College, Pearl River Junior College, and graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in business administration.

He served as administrative assistant to the director of the Criminal Justice Planning Division.

Jackson said he is opposed to advertising by public services and also showed concern about the Grand Gulf nuclear plant.

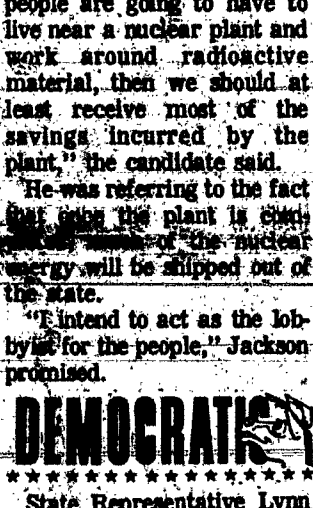

"I do not believe a monopoly would need to advertise and I know that a public service should not be allowed to advertise," Jackson said.

"This is just a waste of the utility's money and is reflected on our monthly bills," he added.

In regards to the nuclear plant, Jackson said, "If our people are going to have to live near a nuclear plant and work around radioactive material, then we should at least receive most of the savings incurred by the plant," the candidate said.

He was referring to the fact that the plant is charged with the nuclear energy will be shipped out of the state.

"I intend to act as the lobbyist for the people," Jackson promised.

"As Southern district public service commissioner, I will work hard for the lowest possible gas and electric utility rates for all Mississippians," Havens said during his announcement.

"I also pledge to work to reduce long distance telephone rates within our state, and to improve telephone service," he promised.

"The secretary of state should be a person with a strong governmental and legal background; one who has been an active leader in his community and state; a person with fresh, innovative ideas and a person who has an understanding of and a strong identification with the people of the entire state," Pittman said.

Board of Supervisors

Hancock County

TO THE PEOPLE OF DISTRICT THREE, HANCOCK COUNTY:

I sincerely solicit your vote for Hancock County District Three Supervisor in the coming Democratic Primary Election on August 7, 1979.

I pledge to you, if elected, to work diligently and earnestly for the welfare of my constituents and for the benefit of District Three, and for the progress of Hancock County.

This involves cooperating with local municipalities, boards of various political subdivisions and the citizens of the communities at large.

I will not hesitate to voice my opinion on controversial issues, but I never will engage in any tactics to prevent a person from expressing his or her views on such matters. I shall always regard such expressions of view as a sacred right to be respected and not to be laughed at nor held in contempt.

I recognize that education is the basis of our society and that our eligible school children should not be denied the benefits of an education they so rightly deserve.

Selective industry for the sound and orderly development of our County shall be my guideline when this subject is addressed and considered by the Board of Supervisors.

I shall endeavor to have the finest road system in the County. When constructing a road I will not concentrate on quantity, but will give quality priority. Good business dictates that it is better to have one mile of road correctly built that will last its expected longevity than to have two miles of road that will crumble at the first impact of vehicular traffic.

I have been self-employed for the past twenty-five years in the farming and contracting business.

I am a member of the Catholic Church in Necaise, White Cypress, and a member of the Knights of Columbus Council No. 7074 in White Cypress, Mississippi. I will treat everyone fair and square and will be fair and honest in all my dealings.

If anyone desires further information about Joe Cuevas, his ability, and the people who know him and who have dealt with him, for as you deal with your neighbor, so shall your character be tested and come to be known.

Home economist shares tips on ants, looks, jelly

Fire Ants are a problem on the farm, they also pose a threat to homeowners in urban areas, Hancock County Extension Home Economist Shirley Robinson reports.

Even though Mirex and Ferriamicide are not available, Chlordane, Diazinon, Sevin and Dursban can be used by the homeowner.

To treat a mound, dig a small trench around the mound two to three inches wide, two inches deep and treat that area.

This treats the foraging tunnels that radiate from the mound.

Gasoline is not recommended, but fumigation is an effective control.

"Remember, read and follow label directions carefully," Robinson warns. "Sometimes little things ruin your looks," states the economist.

Leaning your face on your hands stretches skin, encourages wrinkles and adds soil to the face.

Picking or pulling at your neck does the same thing, she adds, it may even encourage a double chin.

Another nervous habit, twisting hair, promotes split ends and breaks. Biting or picking at your nails spoils the polish and, more importantly, the nails.

"These habits you can't afford to keep," Robinson declares.

Hair and skin need protection, a scarf or hat is fashionable and protects hair from the drying and bleaching effects of the sun.

Sunning without a skin protector encourages a leathery look and speeds the aging process, Robinson says.

"Happiness is another way to improve your looks.

Smiling will make other people feel good, and it improves your appearance. Scowling only makes disagreeable, permanent wrinkles," she states.

ASCS Hancock-Pearl River

Foreign-owned farmland must be reported by August 1.

Foreigners who owned or had at least a five percent interest in Pearl River - Hancock County farmland on February 1, 1979, must report ownership to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) by August 1, 1979.

Those acquiring land after February 1 must report the transfer within 90 days.

The reporting requirement stems from the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act of 1973.

"Failure to report could result in a fine of up to 25 percent of the property's fair market value," Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS office said.

For reporting purposes, the U.S. Department of Agriculture considers agricultural land as any tract of more than one acre now in agricultural, forestry or timber production.

Idle land used for agriculture within the past five years must also be reported.

"The survey guidelines exclude small plots, such as household gardens," Gennin said. "But if an alien produces more than $1,000 in gross agricultural value from any plot of land, he must report ownership."

A farm operator, real estate dealer, bank, attorney, holding company, or other institution will sometimes report in behalf of foreign clients.

"Individuals or companies that specialize in land holding, land transfers, or management services should contact our office for details," the ASCS official said.

10 Good Reasons To Re-Elect

BERT COURREGE

Board Of Supervisor-District 1

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the people of District 1 for letting me serve as Board of Supervisor for the present term.

Due to the splendid cooperation and joint efforts of each of you, our County has experienced much progress and growth in the past several years. Let's touch on some of the highlights of accomplishments made in the county and District 1.

★ (1) There is a total of twenty-one and a half miles of road paved in District 1 in 3.5 years.

(a) The following roads have been paved and resealed.

- | | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1. Springwood Park Rd. | 11. Gin Rd. Extension | 21. Jim Kelly Rd. |
| 2. Pines | 12. McArthur Rd. | 22. First St. |
| 3. Magnolia | 13. Pearlinton Cemetery Rd. | 23. Post Office Rd. |
| 4. Pine | 14. Gin Rd. | 24. Summers Rd. |
| 5. South Hancock | 15. Russ St. | 25. School Rd. |
| 6. Oak St. (Clermont Harbor) | 16. Lodge Lee Rd. | 26. Vic Lett Rd. |
| 7. Bosarge Rd. | 17. Third Ave. | 27. Joe Powell Rd. |
| 8. Ansley Rd. | 18. West Perry | 28. Oak St. (Pearlington) |
| 9. Dorsey Rd. | 19. Lower Bay to Lakeshore Rd. | 29. Gene Murphy Rd. |
| 10. Third St. | 20. Garcia Rd. | 30. 9 streets in Belle Isle |

b. There are 3 miles of Ansley (Lower Bay Rd.) under State Aid construction and 8 more roads in Beat 1 programmed for paving with available funds.

c. Graveled approximately 30 roads in addition to grass cutting, picking up litter, grading, installing culverts and maintaining the beach.

★ (2) All State Aid roads have been stripped and signs installed.

★ (3) A railroad crossing light has been installed at Clermont Harbor, paid for by County funds.

★ (4) We have installed many sets of concrete pipe and opened natural drains throughout the district to improve drainage.

★ (5) Do you remember this scene at Gulfview School 3 years ago? This bad drainage has been corrected and the school yard now stays dry during heavy rains.

★ (6) We now have radio communications between the crew, supervisor and base station to help expedite our work.

★ (7) District 1 owns an equipment barn, with 5 acres of land not obligated to rent.

★ (8) In 3 years we have increased from 2 pieces of operable equipment to 15 pieces of modern equipment.

★ (9) We are now in sound financial condition.

★ (10) Our children have 2 new lighted ball parks for recreation, one at Gulfview and one at Pearlinton.

Some Of Our county-Wide Accomplishments Are:

Doctors are now delivering babies and performing surgery at Hancock General Hospital.

We now have 12 industries located at Port Blenville Industrial Park with employment over 400. With the recent announcement of Borg Warner and the planned expansion of existing industries, employment will increase in the forthcoming months. The new ammunition plant at NASA will also employ 1200 people.

And above all these are things we should be proud to hand down to our children. I am sure there are areas in which our County needs much improvement, but with this kind of record you and I working together can keep our County moving forward.

If re-elected, I will continue to serve with honesty, integrity and dedication.

OLA Book Fair seeking materials for Oct. event

Our Lady's Academy in Bay St. Louis will present its annual Book Fair in the academy gymnasium Friday and Saturday, October 12-13.

This year's expanded book fair will also include a giant rummage sale and flea market.

"This is an excellent opportunity for families to clean out their attics and closets and sell the things they no longer use," said Audrey Comeaux, fair coordinator. Space will be rented to anyone wishing to take advantage of the crowds attending the fair, she added.

NSTL hyacinth program set

A New York-based production company recently spent two days filming at NSTL for a Public Service (PBS) program scheduled to air later this year.

According to Dr. B. C. Wolverton, NASA environmental scientist, a six-man crew of Richter, McBride Productions Inc. filmed various aspects of NSTL's Vascular Aquatic Plant Program which Wolverton heads.

"The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is supporting the whole film for public showing," Wolverton said.

The film will show "how new technology is beginning to convert waste into an asset rather than a liability."

The program, whose working title is "Water Cycle," will include segments filmed at Disney World, where Wolverton is working with EPA officials in establishing a waste water facility.

Portions were also filmed at Florida and Texas locations. Indications are that the segment of the program may focus on NASA projects.

Crew members told Wolverton the NSTL locale "was the most interesting one" they had filmed.

Wolverton said, "The part that really got them excited over our work here is that the water hyacinths or duckweed that we use to treat the waste with can be converted into energy and fertilizer all at the same time."

Other items to be considered during the 2 p.m. meeting include the adoption of a charter and the appointment of a steering committee.

"Last year's book fair was a tremendous success," commented Comeaux, "and this year we will again have an outstanding selection of reading material available at low prices highlighted by a fantastic rummage sale and flea market for the bargain hunter."

All proceeds will go to Our Lady's Academy. Anyone wishing to donate books for the fair or wanting to rent space in the flea market should call 467-6500, she said.

The Day of Recollection concluded with celebration of the Eucharist with Father Neilson as celebrant.

A covered dish supper was served and a social hour was enjoyed by members attending from Biloxi, Gulfport, Bay St. Louis and Waveland. Father Neilson will conduct a Carmelite retreat at the Abbey Retreat House in Covington, La., November 23, 24 and 25.

FASTING BEARS

A mother polar bear may lose half of her 700 pounds weight while snoozing and nursing a pair of cubs in her winter den between January and March, according to International Wildlife magazine. During that period the cubs will gain approximately 20 pounds each.

POOCH OF THE WEEK—Baby, who "...is bouncy, loveable and intelligent," according to her former owners who are relocating in California may be adopted for free through the Bay-Waveland Humane Society. Baby, less than a year old, has been spayed. For further information call 467-9494. (Leelle Williams)

NEW SOCIETY

We will be involved in recruiting members for the Mississippi Grontological Society. At the meeting in Jackson last weekend Hancock County had the most members. Anyone interested in joining please call the Center. It is open to persons 60 years of age and those working with older persons.

POLITICAL INVOLVEMENT

The Center does not sponsor any candidate. All are welcome to make an appointment to come to speak to our people. We appreciate their interest in the senior citizen vote. We are interested in issues and past performance of candidates.

BABY SHOWER

Day-Care participants Center staff, and guests surprised Beth Favre, director of the Day-Care Program, with a baby shower Wednesday afternoon.

The dining hall was decorated with small pink and blue paper napkins. Cake and punch were served.

Among the many gifts was a lovely play pen given by the participants.

Everyone will miss Beth while she is out, and will look forward to her return in a few months.

Her last day at work is "uncertain" as babies don't give a lot of notice.

EXPERIENCE There Is No Substitute

For 12 years before he became Highway Commissioner, Shag Pyron travelled the roads of Mississippi selling heavy equipment. He learned that the people needed better and safer highways, and he learned a lot about highway construction.

In 1967 he was elected your Highway Commissioner for the first time, and started to work on making the roads of his district the best in the state. He's done it.

12 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

He has completed 5 four-lane highways, and has four more under construction. Every primary road has been reconstructed. He's built I-10 from the Louisiana state line all the way to Pascagoula, and in his next term will complete it to the Alabama state line. He rebuilt Highway 90 after Hurricane Camille, making it a four-lane. Responsive to people's needs and concerned for their safety, he has built by-passes around populated areas. (Just to set the record straight, the Highway 98 By-pass at Columbia was built years before Shag Pyron took office.)

NEVER OVER BUDGET

And he's done it all within his budget. Further, he's come back from Washington on several occasions with additional federal funds for projects in the district, when it was thought it couldn't be done. As an example, he's been promised funds to expand the Mississippi River bridge at Natchez to much-needed four lanes.

Shag Pyron has a rare combination of talents. He is dedicated to his job, and has the construction experience and administrative ability to get you the most road for your money.

YOU AND YOUR PET

DIETARY DEFICIENCIES

Many pet foods are advertised as complete foods or balanced diets for cats or dogs, and they probably fill the nutritional needs of most household pets.

However, some pets have special dietary needs; young animals, those recovering from an illness, pregnant pets and some others have nutritional requirements that differ from the healthy adult.

Your veterinarian is the best person to consult about your pet's diet. He or she can determine whether the food you feed your pet provides balanced nutrition, or requires additional supplementation.

A properly balanced pet diet should provide about a dozen basic vitamins. If one or more of these essential vitamins is missing, the pet could be in poor condition, and may lack energy.

Certain medical problems may also develop, depending upon the specific vitamin deficiency.

Eye infections and reproductive problems occur when pets are fed foods low in vitamin A.

Cats may also show a serious weight loss, with some weakness in the hind legs. Pet foods that are improperly stored or rancid can quickly lose their vitamin A content.

Vitamin D, in combination with calcium and phosphorus, is necessary for proper bone development.

It may be lacking in kittens and puppies born during the winter who are kept in dimly lit quarters. Vitamin D-deficient pets will develop bowed legs and weak bones.

The term "vitamin B" describes a group or complex of related compounds, rather than a single chemical. The primary signs of vitamin B deficiency include lack of appetite, anemia and various nervous disorders. Most vitamin B supplements generally contain a blend of the major vitamin B factors. Cats are more susceptible to vitamin E deficiencies than dogs.

Felines develop a condition called steatitis or "yellow fat disease" in which the fat areas of the cat's body become inflamed.

The cat then loses its appetite and becomes sensitive to touch or pressure. Much of the vitamin E in a normal feline diet can be destroyed by the unsaturated fatty acids contained in fish oil.

If your cat prefers a diet with high levels of fish, it might need a vitamin E supplement.

Scientists have discovered other indications of vitamin and mineral deficiencies in pets. Convulsions, prolonged bleeding, stomach disorders, even temporary paralysis can result from a poor diet.

Although there are quite a number of pet vitamins available, you need to be selective in choosing one for your pet. Cats have somewhat different needs than dogs and should receive dietary supplements designed especially for feline use.

The National Research Council, a private, non-profit organization of scientists, has established recommended levels of vitamins for good canine and feline nutrition.

This information is readily available to your veterinarian. He or she can evaluate your pet's current diet against the model recommended for proper pet health.

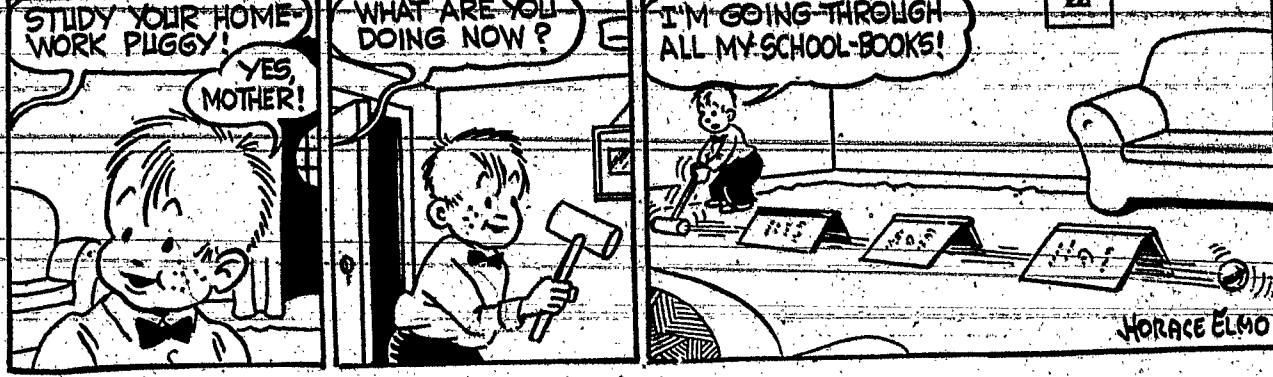

If your pet's diet meets or slightly exceeds the standards established by the NRC, you can be assured it is receiving the nutrients necessary for a healthy life. Generally, dog and cat food manufacturers produce quality products that prevent most dietary deficiencies.

Veterinarians see dietary deficiencies that are usually caused by nutritional excesses and imbalances.

Buccaneer Crew Notes

By KIM DEDEAUX
To any observer it is evident that recreation activities at Buccaneer State Park serves a double purpose. Not only is it entertaining but many campers, as well as people from the general area, develop long and lasting friendships.

On Friday the weekend activities began with the Story Time which proved entertaining as well as educational. Pat Albert and the Cosby Kids "The Runt" was the weekly movie for the evening.

Many campers and local children gathered with park officials to kick off the Third Annual Buccaneer Youth Fishing Rodeo.

Kane Murphy 6, of Laplace, and Chad Roig 6, of Springville La. shared honors for the 5-8 year old age division. Kane caught a 14 ounce speckled trout which was the largest fish for his age division. First prize for his age division was a fishing kit donated by Otasco's Chad Roig caught 30 fish to win the division. He won a tackle box, donated by T.G. & Y and tackle donated by Peterman's Li'l Super Mart.

Mike Legros of Waveland and Kim Lockhart became king and queen of the 9-12 year old division. Mike's 9 year old flounder out weighed all the other fish. His prize was a rod donated by T.G. & Y and reel donated by...

For your child's safety

Accidental poisoning is one of the leading killers of young children, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Company.

"The best precaution the parent can take is to keep all poisonous substances locked up or otherwise out of the reach of children," Dr. Domm advises.

"You should also label all bottles containing drugs and chemicals and never give your child medicine in the dark."

Cosmetics, nail polish and remover, perfumes, cleansers, furniture polish, pesticides and medicines are among the potentially lethal materials found in the house. "If your child does swallow a poison, call a doctor and then start first aid procedures," Dr. Domm says.

He recommends giving the child five glasses of milk or a solution of baking soda or salt in a glass of water and inserting a finger into the throat to induce vomiting.

However, if the mouth is burned, give the victim raw eggs or olive oil and do not induce vomiting.

"Quick emergency action when a child swallows poison can usually avoid tragedy," says Dr. Domm, "but an ounce of prevention can save parents plenty of anxiety."

State Sierra Club predicts growth in air pollution

Air pollution according to the Mississippi Chapter of the Sierra Club is not going away, and for Mississippi it may get worse in the future.

"While Mississippi may presently have some of the cleanest air in the country, judging by the efforts to clean up the nation's air, Mississippians had better learn something about air pollution—the different kinds the causes the effects, and above all what can be done about air pollution," according to Tom Eagan, Coordinator of an Air Pollution Awareness Project of the Mississippi Chapter of the Sierra Club.

"If the state develops economically—as the state government is working for and most of the private sector seems to desire—more people will come to live in Mississippi, and more people will mean more air pollution. One of the costs of economic development is increased air pollution. People should be made aware of that," said Eagan.

As evidence of the thesis that development means more air pollution, Eagan cites the fact that, according to the EPA, out of the nation's 10 largest urban areas, only Honolulu has clean air. And this is after more than a decade of a national effort to clean up the air.

"If Mississippians are going to become concerned about air pollution, they are going to have to see how it is affecting them personally. Unfortunately, many of the pollutants, like ozone—the chief one that afflicts Mississippi presently—are not visible. Nor are the effects of air pollution often immediate and dramatic. And yet, air pollution may be costing every Mississippi household about $240 a year in damages to health and property. And who can place a price on the life shortened by emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma or lung cancer," Eagan said. "There are things that people can do to clean up the air, and prevent things from getting worse," says Eagan. "The Sierra Club wants to hear from those who care about clean air in Mississippi."

Hopefully, when the present Air Pollution Awareness Project has run its course, the Mississippi Chapter of the Sierra Club would like to have established a network of concerned and informed citizens throughout the state who would join together to form a Mississippians for Clean Air.

"Other sections of the country formed citizens for clean air groups after things had gotten out of hand. It would be a little bit of preventive medicine that would save health and property if Mississippi could form a citizens for clean air organization before air pollution becomes visible," Eagan said.

Those interested in more information and the campaign for clean air in Mississippi should contact Tom Eagan, Sierra Club, P.O. Box 4336, Fondren Station, Jackson, MS 39216.

New dimensions for dinner table proposed by Wildlife Federation

Ever dine on an amaranth leaf salad? Or feast on a winged bean casserole?

These are just two of the earth's little-known edible plants that may soon find their way onto our supermarket shelves, according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine.

These and a dozen other "foods of tomorrow" — now available but little used — may also help relieve the world's food shortage, says the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

There is no reason we should confine our menus to the couple of dozen vegetables Americans now eat, according to several scientists quoted in the report.

"You can get the best foods available by concentrating on corn, rice, wheat, and a few conventional vegetables," says the Smithsonian Institution's chief botanist, Edward Ayensu. "There are many other edible plants with high protein content that we've never tried and know nothing about."

Perhaps 80,000 species of the earth's 35,000 known plants are edible. Over the course of history, people have used just 3,000 species for food, and today 95 percent of all our calories and protein are supplied by just 30 species.

Why have so few plants been exploited? In the U.S., the highly mechanized agribusiness has concentrated on wringing tremendous yields from a small number of crops primarily for economic reasons, explains International Wildlife.

History played a part too. Europeans who administered the new world colonies introduced the crops and foods they were accustomed to — potatoes, cabbage, barley, and so on. And today's Americans are reluctant to accept new foods.

In order to feed an ever increasing glut of people, scientists are urging that we broaden our horizons. Biologically, they say, there is safety in diversity.

Whereas bad weather, disease, and long-term climatic changes can play havoc with a few traditional crops, many different crops can provide a hedge against natural disasters.

They might also mean better nutrition for more people. Many of the new crops can grow in difficult environments where traditional crops cannot.

While the new crops may seem exotic, some are already part of the world's food supply. A recent National Science Foundation study came up with 14 new crops for the future.

rising star of the new crops is the winged bean, a slightly sweet vegetable resembling green beans, says International Wildlife.

A few years ago the winged bean was virtually unknown despite the fact that every part of it is tasty and nutritious.

Thanks to some pushing by Noel Vietmeyer, a chemist with the National Academy of Sciences, the winged bean is now grown in more than 70 countries. It may now be at the point where the soybean was in the U.S. 50 years ago, when it suddenly took off to become the most important new crop of this century.

A native of China, the soybean was brought to this country from France by Benjamin Franklin. It received little attention until the 1920's.

Vietmeyer points out in International Wildlife that many of the new crops, including the winged bean, "may not, in a global sense, ever be huge crops."

But he contends that some of these new foods may be crucial for a particular region with a difficult environment.

"It's time," he insists, "that we begin to capitalize on the global wealth of nature."

Remember that the next time someone offers you a plate of fried cocoyams.

The promising new crops

Will one of these obscure plants become the next superstar of world food production?

Winged Bean. A dried, pea-like bean which contains up to 37 percent protein. The pod tastes like green beans, the leaves like spinach, the flowers (when cooked) like mushrooms, and the roots, eaten like potatoes, are nutty in flavor. The beans are grown in parts of New Guinea, and Southeast Asia.

Cocoyam. With its potato-sized root tubers, it thrives in dry or swampy soils at various altitudes, and can be baked, boiled, fried, or ground into flour. The plant now grows mainly in tropical Central and South America and in West Africa.

Amaranth. In the 16th century, they were the major crop for the Aztecs and Incas and played an important role in Indian religions. The grains are higher in protein than cereal grains and the plant's leaves make a spinach-like boiled vegetable.

Guinea Corn. Indians of the American West have eaten the seeds, which contain 35 percent protein and 34 percent oil, for centuries. The wild-growing plants are hardy perennials which thrive on semi-arid, otherwise marginal land. It is being cultivated in Lebanon and Mexico.

Quinoa. Another grainlike crop grown by the ancient Incas, the plant is still a staple for the Indians and campesinos of the High Andes. Hardy and adaptable, the plant is rich in protein and could become an important crop in the tropical highlands of other continents.

Taro. First grown by the Indians 1,500 years ago, the protein-packed seeds also yield a fine cooking oil. The seeds are bitter and must be soaked in running water. It's a tough plant that grows in various kinds of soil, resists pests, and withstands frost and drought.

Circuit Court judge completes training

Circuit Court Judge Kosta N. Vlahos received a certificate of completion at the graduation of general jurisdiction - general session, conducted by The National Judicial College at the University of Nevada in Reno.

The general jurisdiction - general session provided judges with an intensive study of judicial processes and an update of recent legal developments.

Topics explored during the session included jury, judicial problems, court administration, criminal law, civil law, family law, inherent powers, sentencing, judicial discretion, communications skills and techniques, and the courts and the community.

Judge participants in the College's programs utilize many adult learning tools including problem solving and small group discussions, role playing, mock trials, and videotaping with analysis of the taped sequences.

Interaction with judges from other areas of the country is stressed in the education and training programs of the College.

These specialized methods of instruction further this goal by involving the judge in simulated judicial situations.

During two judges from 30 states and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico attended this session.

Their contribution of time and talent is of great value to the College's goal of improving the administration of justice in the United States.

The tree-lined campus of the University of Nevada - Reno takes the judge out of the courtroom and places him in an academic setting.

Cool It for Summer!

There couldn't be an easier or more delicious ending for a light summertime luncheon than luscious Raspberry Lemon Meringue Pie. The filling begins with a precooked base of sweetened condensed milk—the wonderful convenience product which thickens instantly when reconstituted lemon juice is added. The jewel-like layer of raspberry preserves adds a delightful surprise, too—and proves that, as far as lemon pies go, there is something new under the sun!

RASPBERRY LEMON MERINGUE PIE
(Makes one 9-inch pie)
1 (8-inch) baked pie shell
2 eggs, separated
1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
1 cup Real Lemon Reconstituted Lemon Juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/2 cup red raspberry preserves
1 teaspoon cream of tartar

Preheat oven to 350°. In medium bowl, beat egg yolks; add 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk, Real Lemon and rind, and mix thoroughly. Spread mixture evenly over bottom of pie shell. In small bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff peaks form. Add 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk and 1/2 cup Real Lemon Reconstituted Lemon Juice, and mix thoroughly. Spread mixture over top of pie. Bake for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool. Spread raspberry preserves over top of pie. Serve with whipped cream.

HOUSE PLAN

Plan No. SL 265

This delightful split level features an open living area, with easy flow and access for the living, dining and kitchen areas. Keys to the open space design are the sloped ceiling and fireplace.

The dining area, located to the rear, has sliding glass doors connecting to an elevated deck. The kitchen, with all built-in appliances, has a serving shelf to the deck for more convenient serving for outside eating.

Many features are present in the bedrooms. The master bedroom has a sloped ceiling and "Mr. and Mrs." closets near the private bath. The other two bedrooms have extra large closets and one of the bedrooms has a sloped ceiling. The second bath is centrally located for convenience to the other bedrooms.

Located on the lower level are a single garage, utilities and a future playroom area.

The exterior is California rustic and features an interplay of various types of siding. The high pitch and distinctive shed roof gives the appearance of a much larger home.

Design number SL 265, this home has 1,221 square feet on the upper floors and 624 square feet on the lower level.

Complete blueprints are available from E. A. Myers, residential designer, 1400 Scott Boulevard, Decatur, Georgia 30030. This plan appears in the sixth edition of the company's plan book.
